“ Those of you who are close to me know my youngest son Adam, he lost his life in a car accident a little over a week ago.

He was only 30 and had four kids and a wife. He was a great dad with a love for them that was never ending.

He has touched so many peoples heart. He had a sense of humor and a laugh that came from his belly. Adam has always been strong willed and overcame many obstacles since he moved to MI over 10 years ago.

He had a heart that allowed him to help everyone he could and he always had a positive attitude to those who needed it.

As others have said this is fucked up and I will always wonder why. As his mom this is the hardest thing I have ever done.

Remember tomorrow is never guaranteed live today with an open heart, thats what he would want.
