“ There once was a little blond girl
Who could run as fast as a squirrel
Don't call her petite because in that small package
Were a number of things that were XXXL:
Tenacity that would rival the whole of any championship team
A determination that could move people aside with just a glance
A presents that would not be un-noticed in the middle of Kennedy airport
A command authority of a General
A heart so big and open and loving that if removed it would fill Lake Superior
A smile that could over whelm the Grand Canyon
A hug so strong it could take your breath
A touch so gentle it could calm a thunder storm
Her big blue eyes could look at you or through you
A joy of life of family and friends that could be infectious
I am so proud to be able to call her my big sister
There will forever be a bright spot and a dark spot in my heart.
I love you Command Sargent Major Mary Kathryn Myrkle with all my being.

From her Brother Gene
